West Church Anniversary

West Parish church is observing its 125th anniversary this week with services that will long be remembered. The anniversary began last Sunday, June 10, with Children's day, at which time a presentation "West Parish Church Speaks," an original production written by Herman W. There will be two meetings on Friday evening. The first will be a chicken pie supper at 6.30 o'clock in the vestry, the second is a general meeting in the church at 8 o'clock to which the public is most cordially invited.

The supper is in charge of Mrs. Emil DesRoches and Mrs. John F. Hall Jr. Arthur Lewis, chairman of the evening and master of ceremonies at the supper, is also in charge of reservations. Playgrounds, Pumps To Open June 25

The playgrounds and the bathing beach at Pomp's pond will be opened officially for the summer on Monday, June 25, James D. Doherty, director of recreation has announced.

Officials ask that parents keep their children away from Pomp's pond until such time as the guards are on duty. There will be considerable work done at the beach which will necessitate the use of bulldozers for two or three days and youngsters would be in the way of operations.

Because of building operations adjacent to the central playground the spot for recreation activities may be shifted to another part of town property for the present season.

The assessors have presented their analysis of the 1951 assessed valuations on real and personal property to Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long for approval and expect that the tax rate for the town this year will be $40 per $1000, an increase of $4 over the rate of the past two years. Chairman Roy E. New Minister At Ballardvale

The Rev. Robert J. McCune, who has just taken up his new duties as minister of the Ballardvale Methodist church, is now studying at Boston university School of Theology where he expects to get his S. T. B. degree in 1953.

Born in Pittsburg, Pa., and graduated from high school there, he attended Allegheny college in Meadville, Pa., with a major in secondary education. In the latter year of his college course he decided to enter the Methodist ministry.

During his first year in New England Mr. McCune served as youth director in the First Congregational church, Lynn.

More than 2500 people visited the annual flower show of the Andover Garden club over the weekend which was staged in collaboration with the Addison Art Gallery.

Several first prizes were awarded individual entries in many of the classes and the coveted tricolor, the highest award possible was given Mrs. Herbert Farnsworth for a towering philodendron complete with blossoms.

The colorful twin plantings at the entrance to the gallery arranged by Kelsey of Boxford set the mood for the entire exhibit. The border planting in the foyer, arranged by Mrs. Wilson Knipe was both colorful and effective and won for her a third prize.

Issue Call For Town Meeting June 25

A special town meeting has been called by the selectmen for 7.30 p. m., Monday, June 25, to act upon a warrant of four articles.

Article one is to see if the town will amend its zoning by-laws to extend the business district in Shawsheen square to the west side of Poor street so as to include land and buildings owned by Esther Bredbury, on petition of Esther Bredbury and others.

Article two is to see if the town will vote to appropriate $10,000 to purchase or acquire by eminent domain, land on Chestnut and Morton streets adjacent to the central schools and playstead.

Article three is to see if the town will vote to accept an extension of Lincoln circle from its present terminus for a distance of 300 feet, on petition of Stafford A. Lindsay and others.

Article four is to act upon any other business that may legally come before the meeting.

The call for the special meeting was issued after a petition with more than 100 names was filed by Fred E. Cheever asking for the proposal contained in article 1. This matter came before the board of appeals last March in a petition that was rejected after a hearing. The decision was given too late to get the article into the warrant at the regular town meeting last March.

The selectmen then added article 2 for the town to acquire part of the Basso property on Chestnut street and Whittier court, and some Sometimes he's stern but always he's fair and understanding.

Day in and day out he leaves the house without fanfare to earn what it takes to keep our home the pleasant place it is.

When emergencies arise, he's always ready with the fast buck, though he may grumble a bit.

Manly, he's not visibly emotional but on occasion the composed exterior gives way to the warmth and pride that hides beneath.

Whenever the going gets tough and problems arise, whether they be personal or a family matter, he is our bulwark against evil fortune.

Politics And Youth

College graduates are urged by former Senator Philip K. Allen to become partisan politicians, either Democratic or Republican, support the party of their choice and actually share in governing the destiny of America.

In an address at Brown & Nichol school, Cambridge, our fellow townsman told his audience that "marking a single cross on any ballot makes you one of the governors of the United States," and asked why so many graduates fail to become members of the governing group.

In answer to his own question he advanced three reasons; 1) indifference, which may be based on ignorance of the need for service, selfishness or laziness; 2) a cynical attitude toward politics developed through the attitudes of their parents or teachers; and 3) a holier-than-thou spirit which places them a notch above the rank and file.

These parlor reformers, he says, cannot hold a candle to the rugged politicians who grapple every day with complex problems, debunk demagogues, fight greed and corruption, and by persuasion, compromise and steadfastness of purpose slowly advance the reforms which dreamers only describe.

The honest, practical politicians are the men who really get things done. They represent the ideas and ideals of their constituencies. None, he says, is all black or all white but a mixture of grays like normal children of Father Adam. They reflect the American electorate, or they could not stay in office.

Mr. Allen's advice offered to our youth to become actors in the mighty drama of American destiny could well be followed by others. It is the apathy of the voter toward government that has allowed the unsavory conditions revealed by the Kefauver committee, the scandal in high places, the rule by organized minority groups, the growing burden of taxation.

The voter can change all this, yet may have not outgrown the tendency to sneer and scoff instead of acting.

The Editorial "We"

Why does an editor use the word "We" in writing an editorial?

The Iowa publisher recently reprinted the following explanation for the "editorial we" which was published in the Williams-town Advocate over 100 years ago:

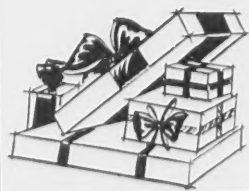

"A Country Editor—is one who reads newspapers, selects miscellany, writes articles on all subjects, sets type, reads proof, folds papers, and sometimes carries them, prints jobs, runs on errands, cuts wood, works in the garden, talks to all his patrons who call, patiently receives blame for a thousand things that never were and never can be done, gets little money, has scarce time and materials to satisfy his hunger, or to enjoy the quiet of nature's sweet restorer, sleep, and esteems himself peculiarly happy if he is not assaulted and battered by some unprincipled demagogue who loves puppet shows and hires the rabble with a treat of cider brandy to vote him into some petty office. A man who does all this and much more, nother recorded, you will know must be a rather busy animal; and as he performs the work of so many different persons, he may justly be supposed their representative, and to have an indisputable right, when speaking of himself, to use the plural number, and to say we on all occasions and in all places."

Education is a thing of which only a few are capable; teach as you will only a small percentage will profit by your most zealous energy.—George Gissing.

French Reds Encouraged By Party Vote In Italy

You'd think Uncle Sam was the candidate in the French national parliamentary elections on June 17 by the way the Reds are making anti-Americanism a chief issue.

The two extremist parties, Communists and Gaullists, hope to obtain the bulk of the votes in opposition to the fickle, patchwork coalition now running France.

In order to retain control of the National Assembly, the "ins" have set up a new, complicated election system that in many cases will give them all of the seats in a district, if the majority grouping list gets 50 per cent or more of the ballots cast.

The size of the vote won by the supposedly badly weakened Communist Party in the recent Italian elections has caused prophets, who up to last week had predicted a slump for French Communists, to stop counting their chickens before they are hatched.

The numerical showing by Togliatti's followers has encouraged their French comrades to fight harder and to slam America oftener. Of course, the United States is the perennial target for Marxist arrows. But in this particular French campaign the U. S. A. is the punching-bag in every conceivable political harangue.

Because Schuman in March had informed Acheson that the elections would be held in June—a time earlier than anticipated—the Red press maintain that "American masters" even decide French election dates and that we framed the new electoral laws to assure a "rigged election designed to steal Assembly seats from the Communist Party and hand them over to fascists."

Wall Street to Be Blamed

The Queuille government is labeled "the American Party," whose "criminal policy" has subordinated France to the rule of "transatlantic multimillionaires." According to Stalinist mouthpieces, it is "selling France to Wall Street" and, if reelected, "these American lackeys will prepare for the slaughter" desired by "American warmongers."

The Reds charge that Washington, operating through "a gang of American servitors" (the Paris government) will at all costs snitch the election. "It should not be forgotten," writes Etienne Fajon, Politburo member, "that in the matter of crime the American bosses are on a par with the Hitlerites who in 1933 set fire to the Reichstag in order to have a pretext for anti-communist terror."

"Therefore we can expect an unprecedented slander campaign against the Soviet Union, bulwark of communism and peace. Dollars will stream into the Marshallized press. Provocation centers have been assigned task of circulating foul posters. The radio will beat all its previous records of lies."

So, if Red candidates are defeated, they already have an alibi prepared: "We were robbed of the decision"—by Wall Street.

Apart from its consistent anti-American slant, communist voter-appeal is based on the slogan: "Bread and peace." "Bread" covers a multitude of economic sins and gripes.

France has no unemployment crisis. It has one of the best family social security systems in Europe. There is no wide-scale misery as in many Continental countries.

Workers Influenced by Capitalist Heartlessness

But average real wages are still below prewar levels. Living costs are 12 per cent higher than a year ago. The Korean war started a new spiral of inflation, prompting fresh demands by unions for pay boosts, including requests by government employees who comprise one third of French workers.

Many non-communist workers are involved in these wage disputes. Their anger was kindled when a commission studying family budgets released a report containing the following quotations by big businessmen: "The minimum wage should imply some hardship lest the fellows get lazy. Why does a workman need pyjamas? He can sleep in the nude."

Such examples of capitalist heartlessness influenced many workers, whose attitudes toward religion and democracy are not communist, to team with Reds in labor struggles and even vote for communist candidates for economic reasons. The Reds are exploiting their advantage by forming campaign committees in factories and angling for those whom they describe as "non-communist workers of goodwill."

A big Red drive also is in progress in the agricultural districts, especially in Brittany and the southeastern wine country. Some appeal is made to latent anticlericalism. Most efforts are directed toward poverty-pinched tenant farmers and younger sons unable to acquire farm land for themselves. The Marxists maintain bureaus that furnish free legal advice to peasants in dispute with landlords.

Many Apprehensive of Outcome

A third major issue is peace—Russian style. Raoul Calas, Central committee member, declared, "Successive governments are persecuting and hounding with ferocity those courageously fighting against the war in Viet Nam. They have brutally repressed people who opposed the presence of American officers in war plants."

Red orators are urging voters to support communist candidates as the only way to prevent France from being turned by American militarists into a battle ground and a target for A-bombs.

To nerve-strained France war means occupation by Russian troops with all the horrors of pillage, rape and murder that such invasion would bring. It would place in power vindictive French communists and they—everyone fears—would liquidate all opponents on the scale of the French Revolution Reign of Terror.

So we find the ironical paradox of some frightened Frenchmen planning to vote communist to save themselves from the communists.

The Reds predict that deGaulle, in cahoots with Washington, would set up a fascist regime and plunge the nation into war. "We will not tolerate deGaulle coming to power," cried Jacques Duclos, Stalin's Man Friday. "Taught by the experience of Hitler's advent to power, we shall never tolerate that deGaulle should do in France what Hitler did in Germany in 1933."

The "Third Force" that governs France also is afraid of the general's authoritarian bent and his dictatorial personality.

Hence Republicans, Radicals,

Just for fun I added them up

My husband remarked one day that women seemed to spend most of their time on the telephone.

"What do you find to talk about?" he asked me.

So, last month, every time I made a call I jotted down whom I'd called and why.

There were calls to the grocer and the dressmaker and the dentist; calls to neighbors to check up on the children's comings and goings; calls to my husband at his job to ask him to bring home something for me. They were routine calls, mostly, except for one to the plumber when a pipe broke.

Last night, I figured out how many miles the telephone has saved me on each call I'd made. And just for fun I added them all up. The total — just for one month — was over one hundred miles!

I'd have had to walk those miles . . .

Without the telephone I'd have had to walk those miles, or drive the car and buy gasoline. I'd never realized before how much money the telephone actually saves me. And as for time — just think of the hours I'd have to spend doing all the errands that the telephone does for me in minutes!

Philip K. Allen, class of '29, and William H. Brown, '34, of the P.A. faculty were elected to the alumni council.

Dedication of a Memorial plaque to former Secretary of State and War Henry L. Stimson, '83, and for many years president of the board of trustees was included in the exercises. The address was made by Headmaster Emeritus Claude M. Fuess.

The Rt. Rev. Henry W. Hobson, president of the board of trustees, and Headmaster John M. Kemper were the principal speakers at the Sunday exercises which brought an overflow crowd to the Cochran chapel.

In the exercises Saturday Fleet Adm. William F. Halsey, USN, Ret., told more than 1200 seniors and alumni that gathered at the dedication of the academy's new Memorial gym that young men who enter the armed services will learn what American citizenship really means. He said that it was not too much to ask that young men of the coming generation give a few years of service to their country.

At the alumni luncheon, which followed the dedication ceremony, Prescott S. Bush of Greenwich, Ct., Yale trustee, said that the schools were failing to fulfill the greatest need of the country today—the need of leadership in public service. Too many boys, he said, are being prepared for a business career.

Honor guests included two alumni who hold the Medal of Honor, Cmdr. Richard H. Kane, USN, and Lt. Cmdr. A. Murray Preston, USNR. A third Medal of Honor alumnus, Thomas J. Hudner of Fall River was unable to be present.

Shawsheen Village needs this owing to the spa, where lunches and sodas were obtainable, having gone out of business. The shop will still operate as a bakery.
